

Card Ideas- Say More Than Words

Two Seasons in One

It's Christmastime and your beach-lover is missing white sands and the toasting sun. Wouldn't it be nice to give her a bit of the beach? Wrap up a hot pair of sunglasses along with a gift card to the nearest tanning salon. Top it off with the Mele Kalikimaka (Hawaiian for Merry Christmas!) card that plays music.

Music to My Ears

Slip a gift card to a music store, a certificate for guitar lessons, or concert tickets into any of the cards that play music. Or strike a different note by giving the card with a CD or DVD of the recipient's favorite band in concert.

Personalized Gift Tags

Add a personal touch to your gifts by using old holiday cards as your gift tags. Cut out different holiday shapes (snowman, ornament, or stocking) from the cards and tape a picture of the recipient onto it. Hole punch the top of the gift tag and put ribbon through it. Put your name on the back of the tag and attach it to the gift.

From me to you

Extend your greetings

Sometimes the unexpected cards are the best cards to get because of the feeling they bring...the feeling of being remembered. Here's a list of people to send greeting cards to this year.

Hairdresser
Mailman Veterinarian
Café worker you see every morning to get your coffee
Teacher, school counselor, sports coach
Local police department/fire department
Family doctor
Piano/music teacher
Your dry cleaners

Say what you mean, mean what you say

Need some inspiration for your holiday card messages? Or perhaps you'd like to borrow some of Hallmark's. We hope this list helps you unwrap some ideas...

Holiday message

May the winter season blanket your heart with warm wishes
And may holiday cheer lift your spirits up to the stars.

May laughter fill your home,
family and friends fill the table,
and love fill your heart.
Happy holidays.

Great memories are first lived.
Enjoy each other this season and make it one to remember.

Hugs at the door. Stories around the table.
Dreams beside the fire.
Wishing you a season filled with warmth and love.

As this year winds down,
A new one will unwrap
And our friendship will continue to grow stronger.
Here's to you, friend, for making the holidays more merry.

A time to reflect on the people we are thankful for,
The love that we share, and the reason we celebrate this season.
Merry Christmas

I'm celebrating the season with a prayer of hope,
wonder of the beauty that surrounds,
and our friendship with gratefulness.
Sweet blessings to you and your family.

Being with you this holiday season is the best gift I could have asked for.
